

I'm not robot

Continue

Best horror movies on amazon prime 2018 free

You can spend an eternity scrolling through Amazon Prime's massive movie library and barely make a dent. So we made it our business to hunt the movies with the best ratings and critical acclaim so you can find what you're looking for, and what you didn't know you were looking for, easier. Presented from the service are everything from Oscar-winning dramas like The King's Speech and The Town and blockbuster popcorn action movies like The Avengers and Mission: Impossible - Fallout, to gripping Amazon Originals like Sound of Metal and The Vast of Night. There are movies for laughter (Borat Subsequent Film Film, The Truman Show), think (The Lighthouse), and with the bejesus scared out of you (Midsommar) - whatever you're in the mood, we found it. These are the best movies streaming on Amazon Prime right now. This list is updated weekly, so make sure you go back often. Prefer something else? We've also put together guides for the best shows on Amazon, the best movies on Hulu, the best movies on Netflix, and the best movies on Disney+.

The Truman Show (1998) There are times in each of our lives where we felt like the events and people around us are often so surreal that they would make amazing fodder for our own personal reality TV show. But what would you do if you discovered that your life was, in fact, that show, and everyone in the world knew it, but you? Mind. Blown. That's exactly what happens to light Truman Burbank (Jim Carrey), the most beautiful man you've ever met, born and moved into the idyllic world of Seahaven Island, which seems to be an elaborate set filled with actors cast to play every role imaginable in Truman's life - parents, friends, teachers, neighbors - all there to help play out every season of The Truman Show. But as Truman gets older, he starts to see the cracks in the façade and begins to question his existence, while the show's creator, Christof (Ed Harris, in an Oscar-nominated role), struggles to stop Truman from finding his freedom. Rotten Tomatoes: 95% Genre: Comedy, Drama, Sci-fi Stars: Jim Carrey, Ed Harris, Laura Linney Director: Peter Weir Rating: PG Runtime: 102 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

The Town (2010) The film that spurned Ben Affleck's status as a serious Hollywood director (even before his Argo landed him a best picture Oscar in 2012), is The Town, on the surface, a gritty, violent and intense crime procedural filled with shooting and car chases. But downstairs is real human drama that painfully details that the life we so desperately want is made or broken by the choices we make. Affleck stars as Doug MacRay, the leader of a Boston gang of skilled bank robbers. After a heist goes off of the rails, the gang's volatile and unpredictable point man, Jem (Jeremy Renner), breaks protocol and takes a hostage, Claire (Rebecca Hall), who later releases them. With the FBI (led by Jon Hamm) on their route, Doug tracks down what happens to live in their neighbourhood and to meet her and find out what she knows. Things get complicated when Doug and Clair fall for each other and Doug begins to imagine a life outside of living with Claire. Problem is, Jem doesn't see it that way. Rotten Tomatoes: 92% Genre: Crime, Drama, Suspense Stars: Ben Affleck, Rebecca Hall, Jeremy Renner, Blake Lively, Jon Hamm Director: Ben Affleck Rating: R Runtime: 124 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (1964) What would be a best list without one of the best, and comedies, Co-written, produced and directed by legendary filmmaker Stanley Kubrick, Dr. Strangelove stars Peter Sellers in several roles (for which he earned a Best Actor Oscar nomination), as he often starred in his films. A cold War black satire of the highest order, the film, which retweets the haywire that follows after estranged U.S. General Jack D. Ripper (Sterling Hayden) launches a nuclear attack on the Soviet Union behind the President's (Vendors) back, opened up to some controversy in 1964 with many filmgoers wondering if something so outlandish could actually happen (turns out that it could happen With bomber planes on the trail and no way for the President or the not remember, the film is a stunning race to a stop nuclear extinction, not even with the help of the wacky Dr. Strangelove himself does not. A must-see film for dark comedy fans or fans of Vendors alone. Rotten Tomatoes: 98% Genre: Sci-Fi, Comedy, Drama, Action Stars: Peter Sellers, George C. Scott, Sterling Hayden Director: Stanley Kubrick Rating: PG Runtime: 95 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

One of only three movies on this list to hit 100% freshness on Rotten Tomatoes, The Sons of Katie Elder still holds as a classic, gritty, Western revenge story and stars the epitome of the genre, John Wayne. The premise is beautiful in its simplicity: The good-for-nothing Elder brothers - John, a notorious gunshot (Wayne), Tom, a washed-up gambler (Rat Packer Dean Martin), hardware dealer Matt (Earl Halliman), and youngest son Bud (Michael Anderson, Jr.) return to years to their hometown of Clearwater, Texas, to attend their mother's funeral. But the boys find that the family farm is swindled into a dodgy card game by ambitious entrepreneur Morgan Hastings (James Gregory), after which their father is killed. The Elders set out to find those responsible, but the Hastings own the town, and

